Regular mammograms are the best way to find breast cancer early. But if your mammogram report says that you have dense breast tissue, you may be wondering what that means.

Breast Density and Your Mammogram Report

Diffuse or scattered distribution is typically seen in benign entities. Even when clusters of calcifications are scattered throughout the breast, this favors a benign entity. Regional distribution according to the BI-RADS atlas would favor a non-ductal distribution (i.e. benignity), while Segmental distribution would favor a ductal distribution (i.e. malignancy).
