Earth system science (ESS) is the application of systems science to the Earth sciences. In particular, it considers interactions between the Earth's "spheres" – atmosphere, hydrosphere, cryosphere, geosphere, pedosphere, biosphere, and, even, the magnetosphere – as well as the impact of human societies on these components. At its broadest scale, Earth system science brings together ...

The term "tipping point" commonly refers to a critical threshold at which a tiny perturbation can qualitatively alter the state or development of a system. Here we introduce the term "tipping element" to describe large-scale components of the Earth system that may pass a tipping point. We critically evaluate potential policy-relevant tipping elements in the climate system under ...

I teach 7th grade Life Science, however, about 1/3rd of my students are reading at a 5th grade level or below (as measured by iReady). Students do not get their own textbook but we sometimes use the set of textbooks in the classroom (Science Explorer by Prentice Hall, 2000 and Exploring Life Science by Prentice Hall, 1995).

Life Science – Middle School Science Blog

Life is a characteristic that distinguishes physical entities that have biological processes, such as signaling and self-sustaining processes, from those that do not, either because such functions have ceased (they have died), or because they never had such functions and are classified as inanimate. Various forms of life exist, such as plants, animals, fungi, protists, archaea, and bacteria.
