Operations Management and the Integrated Manufacturing

CENTUM VP is an integrated production control system for controlling plants that is used in a wide range of fields, including petroleum refining, oil upstream, chemistry, iron and steel, food, and electric power. This General Specification (GS) describes the system specifications of CENTUM VP as well as the components and network specifications.

Abstract. Manufacturing planning and control systems (MPC) design or redesign in the current dynamic industrial environment is a complex process and must be based on a true understanding of the business needs of a particular enterprise and the physical facilities and resources available to satisfy those needs.

Integrated Control and Safety Assessing the Benefits; Weighing the Risks Generally, integrated but separate control and safety systems are viewed as compliant with IEC standards for independent layers of protection, because the network channels are independent and threats to one system will not affect the other.
